CLASS HISTORY

SOON after the opening of school in '27 we exuberant Sub-Freshman held a class meeting. Officers were elected, and, incidentally, part of an English period consumed. Then some one counted up on his fingers, and announced that we were the class of '32. That was an awe-inspiring thought, but it held no reality for us. Graduation was too far in the future to be thinking about.

The present was real enough. There were the patronizing upper classmen, the overbearing Freshmen to contend with. There were Algebra problems to be solved, and Latin nouns to decline. There was Literary Society work, and tours, quite enough to keep the Sub-Freshmen busy.

We soon became accustomed to the routine. Then time passed rapidly for the rest of the school year, except during a week in December, one in March, and one in May. Commencement came, and the Sub-Freshmen class received its due share of honors. The Latin medal was awarded to Virginia McAllister, and the class was represented on the Declaimers contest. As a whole we felt that we had made a satisfactory showing. And our first year at the Collegiate Institute had become history.

When classes were organized in '28 we, as Freshmen, felt vastly superior to the Sub-Freshmen. All but two of our classmates had returned to the "Hill," and many newcomers joined our ranks. During the year we gained considerable recognition. As early as November, Captain McDaniel and Major Webster had declared the Freshmen the banner class in English and History. In spite of that fact some of our names were found in the study hall roll from time to time. At the end of the year the Latin Medal, coming for a second time to a member of our class, was won by Luther Shirey.

During our first two years we so often heard the Juniors talking about the easy life of the Sophomores that we decided there must be something to the idea. So, when we ourselves reached the Sophomore year, we started out light-heartedly. Alas, we were soon disillusioned; Caesar, Geometry, and History note books convinced us that our early impressions were entirely wrong. There was compensation, though, in the fact that the Sub-Freshmen and Freshmen considered us rather wonderful. Captain McDaniel restored our self-confidence by saying that, all in all, he really believed the Sophomores were the best class in school.

With that encouragement we settled down to work in earnest.

For a time things went fairly well, except in Geometry. We were always in suspense, because there was no telling when Colonel McAllister would say, "Well Lohr (or Brown, or McCormick, or Hancock, or any one of us) it says—. To the board!" And to the board we went, whether we could demonstrate the proposition or not.

Along in the third term, spring fever made studying almost an impossibility; so, on April first, the Student body took a holiday, and celebrated in Concord and Charlotte. That was a day to be remembered.

Throughout the year members of our class took an unusual interest in public speaking. At commencement six Sophomores participated in the Declaimers contest, and it was one of the best in the History of the School. Richard Brown was adjudged the best speaker. The Science medal came to another Sophomore, Virginia McAllister.

Although some of our classmates did not return in September, their places were filled by new students, and we started off our Junior year with the largest class in School. We were constantly reminded since we were doing—or attempting to do—College work, we must adopt a more serious attitude. Well—we did before long; no frivolity could survive with our schedule. Seven classes every day, and the best one, “Colonel’s Night Class,” often kept us until nearly five o’clock.

It is the custom for members of the Junior class to render three public debates during the year—on the Ludwig and Gerhardt public programs, and at Commencement. Now, it is our time to perform. On each occasion we were proud of the way in which the members of our class acquitted themselves. The debaters at commencement were, Brown, McCormick, Hayward, and Shirey. The medal was awarded to Brown. Two other Juniors—Dorothy Johnston, and Jerry Morgan—participated in the Declaimers contest and were given honorable mention.

Throughout the year, however, our thoughts were not centered wholly on scholastic activities; athletics, class rings, week-end leaves, and “Dot” Johnston’s Affairs de Coeur” claimed much of our attention. A big event of the year was the camping trip at Cress’ lake in early May. All in all, our year was both profitable and enjoyable. And just before us—

Our Senior year! And, instead of being mysterious or unreal, it seemed perfectly natural that, after four years, we should become the ranking officers, and occupants of the Senior corner in Chapel. Only two of the fifteen Seniors dated back to the Sub-Freshmen Class of twenty-seven, McAllister and Shirey. Lohr had begun with the Freshmen Class. Brown, Hancock, Johnston, Morgan, and McCormick entered in the Sophomore year. In the Junior year five high school graduates came into the class; Barringer, Corson, Greever, Hayward, and Wagoner. Then in September, 1931, Cento and Rodriquez, joined us and completed the roll of the Senior class of ’32. Like most other graduating classes, we possessed very little of the so-called Senior dignity.

Our work seemed more interesting than ever before. Perhaps because we had begun to have a greater appreciation of reasons for taking the subjects in our course; perhaps because we now studied with more of the idea of self-improvement, and less thought of simply doing what was expected of us. Government under Major Webster, we found fascinating. English, Chemistry, Bible, French, we enjoyed them all. and Trig problems bewildering at first, were even fun after we had learned a thing or two about the subject. As Colonel said, "They all come out right if you work 'em right."

November twenty-first was Homecoming Day. We all had a glorious time. It was good to have the old boys return to the Hill and meet classmates that they had not seen since graduation. At the same time, we suddenly comprehended the awful significance of commencement. We had often thought about it, but not in the sense of saying good bye to the school and to each other. Now we realized that when we went home, the members of our class would be scattered in Maryland, Virginia, Carolina, Georgia, Nebraska, and Cuba, and that the chances of our all getting together again were very slim indeed.

No matter, though, how widely we may be separated there are some things that we will never forget—Hayward talking politics with Captain Mc.—"Dot" and Kay Corson holding radiator conferences—"Dot's Line"—"I've got something to tell you"—Hancock in his roll of Manager of Football team—Lohr giving us the proper amount of ventilation in Major Webster's class room—Brown arguing the prohibition question with Prof. Gerhardt—Corson's gurgle—"Gin's 'n "Dot's" daily spats—Jerry and Cento entertaining the Senior English class—The fate of one poor little mouse in the Chemistry lab—"Wag's and Mac's" disgust the day we had to take State exams—Making Chlorine gas in the lab—Barringer's and Rodriquez's remarkable ability to work Trig. These and many, many other incidents and facts will long linger in our memories, to remind us of the happy years spent together at M. P. C. I.

SAPIENT STATISTICS

IF in the dim far away future, some poor benighted mortal chances to gaze on this page, let him be warned that the composer hereof has assumed an alias and fled to China where he joined the Army and learned to eat beans with chop sticks.

The following awe-inspiring revelations were computed after much labor on the part of a faithful servant. Using the mysterious powers of Trigonometry, he developed marvelous figures, wielding the bludgeon of Chemistry he solved the problem of color, and by gargling Blisterine, he cured his halitosis.

Here you are: and who cares if you don't like it?

After backing the protesting members of the Senior class up against a wall and convincing them that they were not going to be hurt, measurements were made. The Seniors were cajoled into chairs and after necessary applications of soap, water, and disinfectant, their feet were measured.

By the application of the principals of Trigonometry, these various lengths were computed.

If the Senior class lay on the ground, end to end, it would reach seventy-nine feet, eight and one-half inches.

If the right feet of the Senior class were placed toe to heel they would reach twelve feet, nine and one-quarter inches. If the left feet of the Senior class were placed heel to toe, they would reach eleven feet, ten and one-half inches. Which means that something is most decidedly odd in Peru.

Then the Senior class was weighed. You know, where there's a will there's a weigh, and where there's a William—oops, pardon, I forgot the rest. Any way, that class weighed one thousand nine hundred and eighty-six pounds, on the hoof, dehorned, C. O. D., P. D. Q., and R. D. R.

Then Chemistry was called into play, but due to several applications of $H_2 O_2$ a head of black hair assumed the color of rust. When this rust colored hair was oxidized with the others and the flame observed through a spectro—scope or a stethoscope or som'p'in, it was found that the color of the hair of the Senior class was burnt orange. If much more hair had been used in experimenting the class would not have had any to worry about.

Now for the Eyes. Ah, the eyes, the portals of the Soul. A combination of grays, blues, greens, and browns, made up a color similar to that possessed by a defunct bi—valve.

Next comes the total age of the class, but here failures loomed dauntingly. We found, at this time, this class had an age approximately two hundred and twenty-six years. Now, cadets are ever and eternally young and a gentleman is discreet, so as to refrain from offending the two young ladies who are in this class, the beau gest is made, and the total age is written two hundred and twenty-six years plus.

—WILLIAM G. "KAY" CORSON, Statistician.

CLASS PROPHECY

THE wanderlust has overtaken us, and so we have decided to make an extended trip throughout the land. We have been lonesome for our classmates who shared our good times at old M. P. C. I. and in order to live the good old days again we are spending a little time with our former classmates.

A few miles out of Mount Pleasant we stop at Cecil Barringer's farm. Cecil tells us that he enjoys farming, and he seems to be doing quite well. He also informs us that Luther Shirey has been elected County Attorney of Cabarrus County, with offices in Concord.

Our next stop was Greensboro, where, much to our surprise, we ran across Professor Lloyd Franklin Hancock, who informs us that he is now president of N. C. C. W. and the recipient of a half dozen degrees.

Stopping in Richmond, to buy a newspaper, we see that William Otto Greever, Jr. is the Editor of the Richmond Times.

In Washington we were very busy interviewing our former classmates. We proceeded to go to the Supreme Court building where we found Associate Justice Richard H. Brown writing a dissenting opinion on an act of Congress. Not wishing to bother Justice Brown any further, we decided to proceed to the Cuban Embassy where we found that His Excellency Don Enrique Cento as Cuban Ambassador to the United States. While talking with Senor Cento we were told that Orlando Rodriguez has been appointed as Minister of War in the Cuban Government, and that Jerry Morgan has controlling stock in the Pan American Airways, Inc.

After a short hop of some forty miles we arrived in Baltimore where we saw Virginia McAllister. Virginia tells us that she is a student of Johns Hopkins University working on a Doctor's Degree in Philosophy.

Proceeding up the coast we find Thurman C. Lohr the proprietor of a large summer resort at Atlantic City.

In another short hop we find ourselves in the great Metropolis of New York. It is not hard to locate our classmates in this great city as they have become so well known in their various professions.

We go into a great building where we are speedily taken up to the sixty-eighth floor. After wandering around for several minutes we walk into a great law office where we find Norris B. McCormick busily working on some important briefs for a case that is to come up before the United States Supreme Court. After interviewing Mr. McCormick for several hours we part from him and begin to search for another famous graduate of M. P. C. I. After dodging and surging among the crowd for fifteen minutes we arrive at the publication offices of the great national magazine. Here we interview Miss Dorothy Lee Johnston who is the Editor of the department devoted to the Lovelorn. We are told that Miss Johnston has become America's foremost writer on this subject, and is consulted by people from all over the country.

Leaving New York City and traveling up the Hudson we find that William Guerin Corson is now Commandant of Cadets at the United States Military Academy at West Point.

We hop out to the great state of Washington, arriving at Seattle just in time to see Hubert Wagoner preparing to take off for his non-stop flight around the world. We see Mr. Wagoner fly off and, as we hear later, he completed his flight.

Then we start back to M. P. C. I. both sorry and glad. Sorry because we had to leave our former classmates after spending so many happy hours with them, and glad to be back at dear old M. P. C. I., our Alma Mater.

Signed,

—C. W. HAYWARD, Prophet.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Mr. Charles Webster Hayward is now President of These United States and is having quite a time convincing Associate Justice Brown that the Office of President is supreme.

LAST WILL AND TESTAMENT OF THE SENIOR CLASS

WE, the class of 1932 of the Mount Pleasant Collegiate Institute, a school of high rank, located at Mount Pleasant, County of Cabarrus, State of North Carolina, do hereby make, publish, and decree this to be our last will and testament, and revoke all previous wills as invalid.

- Item 1. We, the Senior Class, do hereby will and bequeath to the Junior Class the following privileges: (1) The Senior Section of the Chapel. (2) Permission to leave Chapel first. (3) A ten-thirty town leave every Saturday night.
- Item 2. We bequeath to Mr. Newsome, Mr. Hancock's wit and humor.
- Item 3. We bequeath to Mr. Woodall, Mr. Brown's brains and learning.
- Item 4. We bequeath to Mr. Houser, Mr. McCormick's silence.
- Item 5. We bequeath to Mr. Smith, Mr. Wagoner's talent for management.
- Item 6. We bequeath to Mr. Beaver, Mr. Hayward's punishment.
- Item 7. We bequeath to Mr. Trevey, Mr. Greever's fine representation of "Up Home" in Virginia.
- Item 8. We bequeath to Mr. Wharton, Mr. Corson's knowledge of the sea.
- Item 9. We hereby bequeath reluctantly to the Juniors our famous well known Senior Dignity. It is our earnest hope and desire that they will live up to the enviable reputation set before them by the dignified Senior Class.
- Item 10. We bequeath, last but not least, to the faculty, our gratitude for the manner in which they have led us through these halls of learning, and we hope that they will never forget the class of 1932, as being grateful for their efforts.

Executed this seventeenth day of March in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and thirty-two.

—CHARLES WEBSTER HAYWARD, Lawyer.

JUNIOR CLASS

HISTORY OF THE JUNIOR CLASS

BEFORE leaving the Junior Class and passing on into the Senior Class it is fitting to scan some of the events of the past years concerning our development. On September the seventeenth, 1929, the Freshmen Class gathered on the campus of the Collegiate Institute for the purpose of making their education and ability to rise higher in life more complete.

Shortly after the arrival of the students at the Institute the Freshmen Class was called to order and elected class officers.

It was at old M. P. C. I. as at any other school. The Freshmen were quite green and we can say that it was not safe for a Freshman to be around an upper classman, but after all the high spirited Freshmen took the consequences as men.

After going through a successful year as Freshmen we had our summer vacation.

Most all the members of the Freshman Class returned to the "Hill" on September the seventeenth, 1930, to find that they had accepted the position as Sophomores. A few new members came into the class and were heartily welcomed by the old men.

We soon proved our merit by placing members of our class in the higher literary societies and on the Athletic field. Our class put out some of the best athletes on the hill.

September the seventeenth, 1931, a goodly majority of the old Sophomore Class of 1930-1931 was found registering for another year with a large number of new members.

The Junior Class keeps up the record established by the Freshman and Sophomore Classes by putting out some of the best material in scholarship and athletics on the hill, or we might say in North Carolina.

During the three years we have succeeded in gaining the confidence of the Student body and faculty. Upon reviewing the record we find that the class has accomplished great and helpful things.

Below we have a record of the cadets who now comprise the Junior Class:

Seated Left to Right: L. C. Woodall, E. T. Beaver, C. E. Glenn, Jr., J. Broughton, Jr., Frank Forsyth, R. B. Minges, B. F. Houser, Edwin Newsome, S. B. Smith, D. L. Wharton, F. L. Keightley, V. E. Davis.

Standing Left to Right: Charles Casper, Kelly Johnson, Jr., F. B. Sloop, Hal Warlick, M. G. Ewer, W. J. McLendon, J. L. Trevey, C. E. McBride, Arlie Hahn, Clay Townsend.

HISTORY OF SOPHOMORE CLASS

FIFTEEN strong the class of '32 swarmed upon the hill on which Mt. Pleasant Collegiate Institute is situated, in the month of September, the year '29. We were an unusual class from the outset, because of our size. From the remarks of many important looking upper classman, we soon gathered that we were unusually dumb, and what, with bugles blowing strange calls, and upper classmen bawling out unintelligible orders, we readily admit that we were bewildered. But not unusually dumb as "rats."

We were initiated at once into the important phases of Cadet life and rapidly became acquainted with the traditions, customs, and modes of life at the Institute. As rats we enjoyed very few privileges, but we liked the thrill of shooting a high powered gun, and the thrill of being on parade.

The transition from rat-hood into the more dignified rank and realm of upper classmen was a great one. Blithely we returned from the summer furlough to greet the old boys and to meet the incoming rats, of course. As is always the case, we lost numbers of the original members of the class, and had to carry on without them. How confident and cocky we were! How bold and boisterous! For the first time our advice was asked and our opinions respected. After the final examinations we were proudly advanced into the Sophomore Class.

We are now Sophomores with Junior expectations, and we will strive in hopeful endeavor to emulate the splendid example which the many other classes before us have set. We will endeavor to keep the pace and to keep unsullied the sacred traditions which are a great part of the Collegiate Institute.

Seated Left to Right: Newell Lowder, F. L. Webster, A. Jowdy, M. C. Ellington, D. B. Morton, A. P. Harms, Arthur Watkins, Louis Nachman.

FRESHMEN AND SUB-FRESHMEN CLASS HISTORY

BEHOLD! With the Cadet Corps startled, there comes forth upon the scene at the Collegiate Institute, "The Freshmen Class." This Class, a young one, has but little history. We, like other great Empires, must have a foundation and then our fame will proceed.

We are, as may readily be seen but few in number, but with mentality far beyond any measure, and if you follow our record for a few more years this will be proven to you as a fact and not a theory.

We have not undergone many hardships except our books and we look upon them as a pleasure. One of our hard tasks this year has been to look upon an upper Class as "Dignified Sophomores" and we are willing to go through many hard and trying hours that we may reach that Class.

Upon our arrival at this Institute we admired it, but with the passing of time we have grown to love this old college with deepest sincerity.

In consideration of our aptitude, we believe we have a Class outstanding in its qualifications and we look forward to a pleasant and successful stay here at the "Collegiate Institute."

SPIRIT OF M. P. C. I.

SOMETHING vague, intangible, nebulous, yet nevertheless real, pulsing, vibrant: these terms describe the spirit which goes to make our school. The scoffer may hoot at such and deny its reality; may claim that such can exist only in a world of make-believe; may contend that the only thing of value is material. If he doubts, let him come upon the campus "On the hill" and see for himself a school spirit which has marked this Institution for more than three-quarters of a century. Not loud, not noisy, not blatant, it goes on its way, instilling into the hearts and minds of all students those principles for which the Institute has always stood: nobility of character, honesty of purpose, square dealings in all relations of life. This calm unruffled spirit has become part of us and we have made it our own. It tells us to be brave, faithful and true; to stand always and everywhere for rectitude of conduct and righteousness of life.

RESUME OF SEASON

IN the fall of 1931 the football squad under the able direction of Captain Frank Shealy started their schedule. A few of the games were lost but that was to be expected. The team showed that they had plenty of team work and fought hard from the time of the starting whistle until the final gun for the end of the game. They were outplayed and overworked in several of the games due mainly to the lack of material to help them. As a whole the season was very successful and beneficial both to the Cadets and to the Coaching staff.

Baseball in the Spring of 1932 under the direction of Captain Shealy and Coach Magner enjoyed one of the most successful seasons since the 1930 team won the Junior College championship. At the present time the indications are that we shall have another team of like caliber this season. The squad has some hard games ahead of it as yet but by their appearance in the past, that is the games played this year, they will not lose another game.

Athletics as a whole have enjoyed one of the most successful seasons during the session of 1931-32 at the Institute that they have had in a long period of time.

WITH THE ALUMNI

LIMITED space makes it necessary for us to confine our "Alumni Notes" to a very small number of the old boys. Those mentioned here are just a few of the distinguished alumni.

'07—Fred W. Morrison is Executive Secretary of the North Carolina State Tax Commission. Holds A.B. and A.M. degrees from University of North Carolina—A.M. and Ph.D. from Columbia University—taught in the public schools of North Carolina for several years, was head of the department of Teachers' Training School in North Carolina College for Women. He is a member of the Board of Trustees of the Collegiate Institute.

'07—A. W. Fisher is a vice-president of the powerful Cannon Mills Co., largest manufacturers of towels in the world, with main offices located at Kannapolis, N. C. Besides conducting a Cotton Grading School at the Kannapolis plant, Mr. Fisher buys all the cotton for the several mills in the Cannon chain. He holds the A.B. degree from Newberry College—held several responsible positions with other cotton manufacturing companies in South Carolina—is a member of the Board of Trustees of the Institute.

'14—Z. L. Edwards is a successful dentist in Washington, N. C. Took his D.D.S. from University of Maryland—First Lieutenant with American Expeditionary Forces. In July, 1927, Dr. Edwards wrote: "Please make reservations for Z. L., Jr., who is now ten months old. I hope to enter him in 1942." "Doc," who is another member of the Board of Trustees, has encouraged a number of boys to come to the Institute.

'16—W. F. Loffin is manager for a large firm of Certified Public Accountants in Columbus, Ga. He is actively associated with the business and social life of that city—honorary member of the Country Club—member of the Chamber of Commerce—member of the Lions Club—member of the Board of Stewards of St. Luke's M. E. Church.

'17—C. W. Trexler, who has been doing graduate work in medicine in Vienna, Austria, during the past two years, is now located at 45 Young Building, Honolulu, Hawaii. Took his A.B. from Roanoke College and his M.D. from the University of Virginia. Prior to going abroad to study, Dr. Trexler was resident physician in a government hospital at Honolulu. During his stay in Vienna he was made president of the American Student Union.

- '19—H. J. Coley holds a responsible position with the U. S. Civil Service Commission. During the past several years he has received several promotions, and is now head of one of the departments in the Norfolk Navy yard at Portsmouth, Va. Mr. Coley is held in high esteem by all of his associates in the Service, and is prominent in the social and religious activities of Portsmouth.
- '23—William A. Sechler is a member of the famous Paul Whiteman Orchestra. His friends will be glad to learn that he is broadcasting over the N. B. C. system with "The Romancers" every Friday night. Prior to going with Paul Whiteman, Mr. Sechler was a member of the Earl Burnett Orchestra of Los Angeles, and was in several Vitaphone pictures. Sechler started his musical career in the Institute Glee Club.
- '31—W. A. Pritchett, Jr. is connected with a leading Drug Company in Charlotte, N. C. During his years at the Institute, "Bill" established an enviable record. He was a leader in the various phases of school life—scholastic, literary society, military, athletic, etc.

HISTORICAL SKETCH OF THE COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE ITS REORGANIZATION

IN 1903, the year following the close of North Carolina College, the Collegiate Institute had its beginning. Prof. G. F. McAllister, honor graduate of the College, had been elected Principal of the Preparatory Department on the day of his graduation in 1897. He held this position until 1902, when by resolution of Synod concurred in by the Board of Trustees, the College was suspended. Although proffered a position on the faculty of another college in the state, influenced by a general desire of the community that the doors of the institution be kept open and his own interest in the perpetuation of his Alma Mater, Prof. McAllister together with the late Rev. L. E. Busby, D.D. conducted a purely private school in the buildings of North Carolina College in 1902-1903. Doctor Busby died in March, 1903. Prof. McAllister continued the school to the end of the session.

Then, for the second time within a few years, it appeared that the doors of North Carolina College must be closed for good. However, fate ordered otherwise. Prof. McAllister and Rev. H. A. McCullough, D.D. (who became pastor of Holy Trinity Church as successor to Doctor Busby) were authorized by the Board of Trustees of North Carolina College to conduct a school of such curriculum and under such name as they might determine and the Board approve. Under the arrangement approved by Synod, Mount Pleasant Collegiate Institute was chosen as the name of the school and the curriculum was designed to prepare (1) for regular entrance into the advanced classes of college those students who planned to go through college, and (2) to give such training to those who did not plan to go through college as would best fit them for their life work. The Collegiate Institute became successor, as it were, of North Carolina College and became heir to the plant, furniture, apparatus, library and good will of the college. It was early resolved by Synod and several time reiterated that the Collegiate Institute is in a peculiar sense the institution of the North Carolina Synod and deserving of all the moral and financial support the Synod could give it.

For the first year, there was an enrollment largely local of slightly more than fifty and three teachers. Soon, patrons were convinced of the merits of the school. The thorough training, safe and sound discipline and high ideals inculcated bore fruit and the reputation of the Institute spread. Professors McAllister and McCullough as co-principals guided the destinies of the school for four years. Then Rev. J. P. Miller, D.D. succeeded Doctor McCullough and remained with the Institute as co-principal for two years, when Prof. McAllister was elected head of the school in which capacity he still serves.

In 1907, the modified military feature was introduced to properly regulate and control the school and to give students needed physical exercise and development—not to make soldiers, but to make men! The system has abundantly justified itself and at no time has the management contemplated its discontinuance. Space is not available for anything like a complete record of the struggles, growth and development of the Collegiate Institute for the next twenty-five years.

Patronage increased, more teachers were added, improvements were made in the plant and equipment and the curriculum was broadened, so that the Collegiate Institute acquired a reputation as one of the best schools of its class in the South. In 1917, the Main Building was completely rebuilt within; steam heat, electric lights and water works were installed. A few years later, the Philaethian (Now Gerhardt) Literary Society Hall was remodeled. Later, the old Doctor Bittle House to the East of the campus was acquired as a part of the school plant and converted into a home for students. That building and the President's Home on the campus were remodeled. In 1925, a much needed new dormitory was erected. This is a handsome, substantial brick building and has been pronounced by competent judges one of the best dormitories in the state. Meantime, valuable and extensive additions were made to the Laboratories and Library, thus greatly increasing the facilities of the institution for doing good work.

"Merit, the Measure of Success" has from the first been the motto and guiding principle of the administrators of the Institute. This is reflected in the records of the sons of the Institute in college and university, and in active life. Graduates of the Institute have established enviable records at leading institutions of the South. More honors, scholarships and prizes have been won by graduates of the Institute, in proportion to number, than by those of any other school in the Carolinas. They have won high place in the ministry, teaching, law, medicine and business. Institute men are to be found today on the faculties of North Carolina State College, University of North Carolina, Duke University, University of Virginia, Chicago University, Purdue University, Newberry College, Lenoir Rhyne College, Roanoke College, Lutheran Theological Seminary of Chicago and other institutions, not to mention many prominent Public High Schools. Prominent pulpits in cities like Columbia, S. C., Atlanta and Baltimore are filled by alumni of the Collegiate Institute.

Although the resources of the Institute have been meager, the faithful and efficient work it did not only fitted men for success, but has also won for it a reputation widely extended. Within the past several years, there have been enrolled students from twenty-one states and three foreign countries.

From its inception up until 1921, the Institute enjoyed the fostering care and at least limited financial support of the North Carolina Evangelical Lutheran Synod. In that year (1921) was consummated what many believed was a desirable union of the North Carolina and Tennessee Synods. At the merger meeting, the announced educational policy was "the development of all our institutions," one of which was the Collegiate Institute. Those most closely identified with the Institute accepted in good faith this declaration of purpose on the part of the leaders ecclesiastical. But, sad to relate, it soon began to appear that reliance could not safely be placed in this supposed solemn covenant, for gradually but surely it became evident that the aim of at least one party to the "union" was the aggrandizement of another institution, let come what might to the Collegiate Institute. So much so that a prominent editor of the state declared in public print that it was "the purpose of 'the powers that be' to scuttle the institutions at Mt. Pleasant." The management of the Institute was unwilling to accept this conclusion so incompatible with the policy announced in solemn convention assembled by his fellow churchmen. It was hard to acknowledge treachery in the household of faith. But, facts are stubborn things.

Within a few years after the merger of the two Synods, a campaign was launched for the largest amount ever sought by a Lutheran Synod in the South—$650,000. Of course, it was assumed by all who accepted in good faith the policy declared at the merger meeting, namely, "the development of all our institutions," that this amount would inure to the benefit of the Collegiate Institute along with the other institutions of Synod. But, not so. Despite earnest pleas on the part of many, including alumni of the College for fairness and good faith, those in charge of the campaign insisted on applying the proceeds solely to the College at Hickory. Troubles of one kind and another arose. In the midst of these troubles, the Board voted to give the Collegiate Institute a much needed dormitory from the proceeds of the campaign, and sent agents among the pastors and congregations in the territory of the Collegiate Institute urging liberal co-operation on the ground that the Institute was to get a dormitory from the proceeds of the campaign. This was in March. Later in the spring, canvassers including Board members came by the Institute and inquired of the Principal if he had let the contract for the heavy timbers for the dormitory. In May following, this promise was repudiated, the Secretary of the Board inquiring whether the Executive Committee of the Institute Board had raised any funds with which to build a dormitory!! A resolution was passed by the Board in session at Mt. Pleasant that, in view of the present high cost of labor and material and in view of the unsettled question as to the location of the College (Gastonia was then bidding for the College,) all building operations at both institutions be deferred. Despite this resolution, the College proceeded with the erection of a large Gymnasium. The Collegiate Institute had to wait and depend upon the outcome of an independent campaign for its dormitory. It was not surprising that this campaign did not prove 100 per cent successful, coming right on the heels of the recent campaign for $650,000!!

The United Lutheran Church in America, the General Body of which the United Synod of North Carolina is a member, several years before, recommended 1930 as a year when the various member Synods should seek to strengthen their institutions. The United Synod of North Carolina approved the recommendation and authorized the Boards of Trustees to formulate plans for conducting a campaign to raise funds for the two institutions of Synod. While each institution had a distinct Board of Trustees as per charter provisions, yet, as a matter of fact, the personnel of the Boards was made the same after the merger of the two Synods, contrary to the judgment and against the will of those identified with the Collegiate Institute. This arrangement played into the hands of those individuals bent upon gaining every advantage for their pet institution and increasing the embarrassment of the Collegiate Institute, notwithstanding the fact that in qualifying as members of the Board of the Collegiate Institute (North Carolina College) they solemnly pledged "before God and this Board" that they would work for the promotion of the institution. In the conduct of the campaign was witnessed the culmination of the purpose of the "powers that be" to scuttle the Collegiate Institute. Having made the President of the other institution the Director of the campaign and the other institution the headquarters of the campaign, those in charge of the campaign practiced such flagrant and shameless discrimination against the Collegiate Institute that the Principal of the Institute was impelled to lay bare before Synod in February, 1931 the continuous succession of violations of the announced policy of Synod to develop its institutions. In this recital he instanced acts on the part of the Chairman and other members of the Board in direct violation of their pledges when inducted into office; he cited statements and acts of the Director of the Campaign highly prejudicial to the Collegiate Institute, despite the fact that he (the Director) had declared before the Board that it would be his purpose to conduct the campaign fairly in the interest of both institutions; he declared that the contentions he had made with reference to bad faith and unfair treatment of the Collegiate Institute by certain members of the Board and the Director of the campaign had been abundantly proved by undeniable facts cited and that he had other facts of a similar nature, if they were wanted. He closed his remarks with the statement that if the attitude of Synod as expressed by dominant characters on the Board and certain ones connected with the College was to be the same in the years ahead as it had been in the decade past, it were better for the Collegiate Institute if it had no connection with the North Carolina Synod.

Thus the way was paved for the Synod to sever its connection with the Collegiate Institute. By resolution the Board was authorized to close the Institute when in its judgement it deemed wise. The fact that the institution is more than three-quarters of a century old and has alumni and ex-students scattered all over the country, and their reaction to this movement, seem not to have been taken into account. Disapproval and vigorous protests were voiced from all sides. So that, within 30 days after the meeting of Synod, the Executive Committee of Synod had passed a resolution overturing Prof. McAllister to continue the Collegiate Institute. Later, a Special Committee from the Board of Trustees, acting in harmony with this resolution, effected an arrangement with Prof. McAllister for the continuance of the Institute independently of Synod.

As a condition prerequisite to this undertaking, Prof. McAllister announced that he would require a Board of Trustees who had faith in the Collegiate Institute and its management, who would agree to attend meetings at least once a year in Mt. Pleasant and at such other times and places as he might recommend and they find practicable, and who, without assuming personal financial obligations, would nevertheless help pave the way later for approaches to men of means in an effort to strengthen the institution financially. To the gratification of Prof. McAllister and all friends of the Collegiate Institute, men of character and high standing from various sections and of various businesses and professions, representing different faiths, responded to the call and a Board was formed of the following:

W. H. Beckerdite, Esq., Concord, N. C.	Mr. A. C. Lineberger, Jr., Belmont, N. C.
Hon. R. L. Doughton, Laurel Springs, N. C.	Mr. Wm. M. Sherrill, Concord, N. C.
Mr. George F. Harms, Savannah, Ga.	Mr. C. M. Cook, Mt. Pleasant, N. C.
Mr. H. E. Isenhour, Salisbury, N. C.	Mrs. J. S. Eford, Albemarle, N. C.
Mr. A. N. James, Mt. Pleasant, N. C.	Mr. J. L. Fisher, Salisbury, N. C.
Dr. H. A. Moose, Mt. Pleasant, N. C.	Hon. D. F. Giles, Marion, N. C.
Dr. R. Matt Patterson, Concord, N. C.	Dr. Joe F. Hartsell, Concord, N. C.
Rev. Geo. S. Bowden, Gastonia, N. C.	Mr. C. G. Heilig, Jr., Mt. Pleasant, N. C.
Mr. W. L. Burns, Concord, N. C.	Mr. A. R. Hoover, Sr., Concord, N. C.
Dr. Z. L. Edwards, Washington, N. C.	Dr. F. W. Morrison, Raleigh, N. C.
Mr. A. W. Fisher, Kannapolis, N. C.
Mr. B. R. Hinson, Charlotte, N. C.

This Board is self-perpetuating. It is divided into three groups, the term of office being three years, that is, one third of the Board will be elected each year, all being eligible for re-election. The Alumni of the Collegiate Institute have the privilege of nominating three members annually. It is intended to increase the membership to 30.

The Institute opened for its 28th session, September 16th, 1931. There have been enrolled students from thirteen states and three foreign countries. Although the effects of the depression have been keenly felt, the session has been quite successful. The esprit de corps has been most gratifying. Old friends have manifested a keener interest in the success of the Institute, and many new friends have been made. The outlook for the future is decidedly encouraging.

THE RECALL

TO the minds of our fellow Cadets, the "Recall" would not be complete without a special recognition of our former Football Coach, Captain F. W. Sheally. Credit must be given to him for many gridiron victories enjoyed by our Cadet team of the past three years and for the Championship Eleven of '29.

Ever regarded by his associates as a sportsman and gentleman and admired by his team as an able manager and coach; he might well be known as "Our Knute Rockne."

We hope that he will always carry with him pleasant memories of his stay here in the capacity of Director of Athletics.

Broughton: I play the saxophone to kill time.
 Nachman: Well, your playing would kill anything.

Major Webster: Hayward, How many terms did the last governor of Nebraska serve?

Hayward: Two, one in the capitol and one in the pen.

Houser: Did you ever see a cow ride a bicycle?

McBride: No, but I saw Newsome dance.

Glenn: What do you like best about our new alarm clock?

Wharton: The little gadget that you cut it off with.

Knebel: He shattered my boyhood dreams.

Woolen: Who was the brute?

Knebel: The guy that blows the bugle.

Smith: I hear McBride is a different man since he met that blonde in Salisbury.

Ellington: Yea, he gave her the wrong name and address.

Lowder: I met the laziest man in the world today.

Nachman: Oh yea? how does it feel to be ex-champion?

Corson: Dot, what are you going to do when you get to be a big girl?

Dot: Diet.

Ewer: Dad, maybe you think I get excited easily, but this afternoon Coach Magner told me I had a very level head.

Dad: So your Coach is a phrenologist.

Maj. Black: I'll try anything once except marriage.

Miss Emma: Why make an exception of marriage?

Maj. Black: Because I intend to try that several times.

Reporter: Since you say the conduct of the cadet corps is shocking where would you say that they were headed for?

Colonel: The boarding hall.

Rev. Gerhardt: Brown what did King Solomon's wives say when he asked to go out at night?

Brown: A thousand times, no.

Morgan: Stick 'em up, I'm going to steal a kiss from you.

Girl: I won't listen to such a thing.

Morgan: Very well, put your fingers in your ears.

Woodall: I'm going to a beauty doctor.
Maj. Black: That's no use; what you need is a miracle worker.

Johnson: I hear Harms collects Antiques.
Walton: Yes, I know, I've seen his girls.

Capt. McDaniel: Do your men get up bright and early?
Sergeant Greever: No sir. They get up early.

McBride: These are the best eggs we've had for years.
Glenn: Well bring me some you haven't had so long.

Girl: A girl friend of mine's having a party tonight; if I knew you better I'd ask you to go.

Frank Sloop: Oh! My middle name is William, I was born in 1912. My dad's in the hardware business. My mother belongs to the Daughters of the Revolution, I weigh 176, I am five feet eight inches tall, an excellent swimmer, dancer, and football player, I have a bank account, etc., etc.

Coach Magner: If you fellows want to play football you must eat only fruit, toast, lean meat, and drink orange juice.

Ewer: Before or after meals sir?

Girl Friend: How did you get that pretty little round mouth?
Newsome: From saying no to other girls.

Visitor: Say buddy, how many studies do you have in school here?
McCormick: Oh about one in every ten.

Colonel: Humph! Brown absent again today, I bet he has some sort of lame excuse.

McCormick: Yes sir, he broke his leg.

Shirey: (On Chemistry Lab) Coach, the barometer has fallen.

Coach: How much?

Shirey: Only five feet but it's broken.

Capt. Sloop (While dining out): Dot, these biscuits are fine.

Dot: Oh Captain, that's the butter dish you're eating.

Maj. Webster: What skins are most used for shoes?

Jowdy: I don't know sir, but banana skins make good slippers.

Brown: Virginia says she likes the tone of Mack's voice.

Greever: Yes, I guess she thinks there's a ring in it.

SUBJECT: Application for leave.

TO: The President (through military channels).

FROM: Capone, "Al."

1. I request that I be granted a leave to go home as I think my invalid grandmother is about to die with the "Jake Leg" and I also have a midnight appointment with a bank so as to secure money for the Annual. My mother and father are desirous that I come home so as to ascertain whether I have improved any since I left. I also want to see a doctor about my thumb which has been sprained from thumbing automobile rides. I also have a special engagement with a young lady, my cousin, to go automobile riding Saturday night. But my main purpose is to see about a job for this summer as my father is now selling pencils on the street corner and and I must help support my mother and fourteen dear baby brothers. If granted, this leave is to begin before "Trig" class Friday, May 10 and end not sooner than necessary.
2. My last leave was the summer vacation.
3. To the best of my knowledge I am in every way disqualified to receive this leave.

TO LADS OF GRAY!

(DEDICATED TO THE CLASS OF 1932—M. P. C. I.)

*Four long years have passed
Amid the rock-crowned hills that massed
Their vaunting towers like sentries in the sky!
Four long years! What have you learned
Of Duty, Lad, and manly honors earned,
To mark you as but one to do or die?*

*“You’re all finished now,” you say.
To lighter fields of merriment gay
You’ll go—but be alert—go not too fast!
Your race is but just started, Lad—
Your chance to win? The best you’ve had,
So guard your reputation till the last!*

*After all, Life’s what you make it.
Be a man! Just give and take it—
Keep your hard-won reputation white as snow!
For what you have you’ve toiled and worked.
You gave your best—and never shirked,
Just do the same in Life—where e’er you go!*

With Our Sincere Congratulations

THE TRUE ATMOSPHERE OF SCHOOL AND COLLEGE

WE endeavor, in producing school annuals, to render a helpful and constructive service directed toward enabling a student staff to get out a representative, distinctive book within their budget.

In connection with our new and modern printing plant we maintain a large Art and Service Department where page borders, cover designs, division pages, and complete decorative and illustrative motifs are created and worked out.

A COMPLETE SERVICE FOR SCHOOL PUBLICATIONS

Dear Tim,

I sure hate to leave you pal, please don't forget me 'cause I think you're awful sweet and I like you lots.

If you ever get sick come up and I'll treat you. But please don't wait until then. I hope you have success in whatever you do and don't forget me or your "pal" that loves you lots.

Love —

Dear Tim,

Away, (~~remember~~) remember a good friend that always thinks a lot of you and who was once to be your "roomie"

Lots of love

Mary.

Dear Virginia

Best wishes for a successful life after you finish school.

Dear Sir,

I have been honored immensely by your friendship and acquaintance thru' this past year, and what ever I have to offer you in the way of happiness and success, believe me, when I say sincerely, that it comes from the bottom of my heart. You are a wonderful lady, Virginia, and I admire and respect you for it. You have many wonderful attributes!

Sincerely & So long
